

AIR RACE FOR HONOLULU LAUNCHED

FEAR REVIVAL OF ANGLO-JAP ALLIANCE

WELCOME, Y. P. B. DELEGATES

Xenia extended its off-beat hospitality to delegates to the state convention of the Young Peoples' Branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union Tuesday.

Delegates arriving Tuesday morning foretold an assemblage of between 200 and 300 young people from all over Ohio to attend the sessions of the four-day meeting here.

They found themselves welcomed into Xenia's homes, for Xenia's hospitality took the form of receiving these young visitors into private residences for lodging and breakfasts, all that the committee asked.

Entertainment for the visitors has been prepared by a local committee, and includes interesting features. During the stay of the delegates this city hopes to conduct itself in a manner that will leave a lasting impression of goodwill and friendship with these emissaries from our sister Ohio cities.

ENGLISH ATTITUDE THREATENS TO TAKE LID FROM QUESTION

Britain Virtually Renounces Naval Parity
Program

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Great Britain's aggressive attitude at the tripartite naval conference—and the fact that Japan is supporting her in that attitude—has led Washington officialdom to strongly suspect that the far-famed Anglo-Japanese alliance is being resurrected at Geneva.

This alliance, a prickly thorn in British-American relations for many years, was supposedly killed and buried at the Washington conference in 1921 by Charles Evans Hughes. It was to secure the abrogation of this anti-American partnership that the American government departed from its traditional policy of "no alliances" and entered into a treaty with England, Japan and France for the mutual protection of each other's possessions and interests in the Pacific.

For six years the Anglo-Japanese alliance has apparently remained dead. But the sequence of events at Geneva for the last ten days has about convinced officials here that it is emerging from its grave of again confound American statesmanship.

First Great Britain has virtually renounced the naval parity with the United States, which she so eagerly accepted at Washington. She insists at Geneva that "Britain's control of the seas is vital to Britain's continued existence," while the first lord of the Admiralty, W. C. Bridgeman, bluntly informed the American delegates that "naval equality for America is simply a luxury and a political bi-play."

Second, in the all-important matter of cruisers and auxiliary fighting craft, Britain has refused to concede to the United States an equality in tonnage and armament. Third, the British delegates have insisted upon reopening the question of capital ship tonnage, established by the Washington treaty. This amounts virtually to an attempt to revise that treaty and recall the equality she so eagerly accepted at a time when the United States was laying down the world's greatest navy.

Japan's delegates at Geneva at first supported the American delegation in refusing to consider the reopening of the Washington treaty. Then, suddenly, and after consulting with Tokyo, the Japanese delegates blandly announced they believed there was something in Britain's proposal after all, and that Japan was willing to discuss the question of capital ships.

This surprising about-face on the part of Japan's delegates followed a series of extended conferences between the British and the Japanese at which it is understood some important questions concerning China also were discussed.

A strong suspicion exists in Washington that the Anglo-Japanese agreement at Geneva is merely collateral to an Anglo-Japanese agreement concerning China. Britain is in a precarious position in China and throughout the Orient. She needs a "big stick" partner there, and the United States declines to be it. Japan would fill the bill nicely. A revival of British-Japanese unity in China, as against the American policy of peace and the open door, would provide American statesmanship with a pretty problem.

Washington continues to marvel at the marked difference in Britain's policy in the arms conference of 1921 and the arms conference at Geneva in 1927. "A Jekyll-and-Hyde difference," said one official.

IN RACE BY AIR FOR HAWAIIAN ISLANDS

Ernest Smith, (right), air mail pilot and his navigator, Captain C. H. Carter, missed their hopes of being the first to take off across the Pacific when the army flyers, Maitland and Hegenberger, started before them from Oakland Tuesday morning. Smith immediately boarded his plane to follow the army aviators.

"AVIATOR WITH BROKEN NECK" PLANS TO FLY TO PACIFIC COAST WEDNESDAY

HAWAIIAN FLYER IS HURRYING TO START RACE ACROSS OCEAN

Richard Grace Only
Awaits Propeller To Begin Flight

HONOLULU, June 28.—Fearful of losing out in the race to be first to span the Pacific by air, Richard Grace, the "aviator with a broken neck," and so-called navy entrant, today speeded up arrangements for his proposed Hawaii-to-the-mainland flight. Grace hopes to take off tomorrow morning.

With the exception of a new propeller, Grace's plane was all set to go. A propeller, shipped aboard the liner Maui, will arrive in Hawaiian waters today and will be carried to Pearl Harbor by sea-plane.

At Pearl Harbor, mechanics will install the propeller and make a final, hasty inspection of Grace's monoplane. The flyer will then pilot his plane to the island of Kauai, whence he will zoom away for California.

Mechanics worked all night, tightening struts, nuts, and making a thorough survey of the plane. Grace's ship, although smaller, is of the same general type as Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis."

Using a borrowed propeller, Grace made a test flight late yesterday, flying over Ford Island and Pearl Harbor for half an hour. The aviator was not quite satisfied with the speed shown by his machine, but expects installation of the regular propeller to help remedy this defect.

Grace, like Lindbergh, will have difficulty in seeing straight ahead. By standing erect, he can peer over the top of the cockpit, but for the most part he will rely upon vision through side windows.

Grace will vary his altitude in accordance with the wind and the weather, he stated today.

The planes were accompanied by the Ford reliability plane and two other guest machines. Paul Braniff, piloting the Eagle Rock, was the first to take off.

JUNE ACCIDENTS OUTNUMBER JUNE BRIDES

Swift turnovers in the automotive field are being reported from streets and county roads as June swings undecided between the title of "The Month of Brides" and "The Month of Accidents."

Increased activity among the summer tourists, the picnickers and the common variety of joyriders, indicate that there may be more auto accidents than June brides during the month.

With two more days to go and all precincts not heard from, the brides and the accidents are running neck and neck to lay claim to the month with the latter occupying an advantageous position next the rail.

With the increase in accidents, it begins to appear that when the automobile salesman promises a quick turnover he means that the car will turn over in the ditch quicker than most. Any advantage that might accrue from this situation can not be discerned through the small end of the telescope except that every auto that finds its way to the junk heap makes room for one more new car.

Some salesmen are making a point of the fact that when their cars drop into the creek, then turn turtle, a manner of quick thinking not to be despised under the circumstances. However, with returns still coming in, we (meaning the typewriter and I), will continue to make the old bicycle do service for a while.

ARMY FLYERS FIRST TO LEAVE OAKLAND; SMITH FOLLOWS THEM

Maitland And Hegenberger Start In Fog With Best Wishes Of General Patrick—Army Planes
Escort Aviators

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, OAKLAND, Cal., June 28.—Ernest Smith, air mail pilot, accompanied by Charles Carter, took off for Hawaii at 9:37 a. m. today.

OAKLAND MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, OAKLAND, Calif., June 28.—On their way to new triumphs and taking the honor of being the first to start the race to bridge the Pacific between California and Hawaii, the giant army monoplane started its take-off here today at 7:08 a. m., bearing Lieuts. Lester J. Maitland and Albert F. Hegenberger.

Down the fairway went the big plane. A big cloud of dust blew up behind. A crowd of 75,000 went wild and roared in excitement.

The big plane taxied a little more than a mile down the runway and then rose gracefully from the field to a beautiful take-off half a minute later.

The Fokker headed over the island city of Alameda, crossing the Oakland estuary on its long flight toward Hawaii.

They then turned west and soon faded to a speck in the sky.

A fog over the bay impeded visibility.

Two planes escorted the Fokker, one going on each side of the army entrant.

Ernest Smith, air mail pilot and civilian entry in the race, immediately ordered his plane to get set for an immediate take-off. The civilian flyer planned to hop off in pursuit of the big Fokker within twenty minutes.

The Fokker, before disappearing in the haze, reached an altitude of 6,000 feet. Five planes from Crissy Field flew 3,000 feet below. Other pursuit planes formed a personal escort to the Fokker bying on the same 6,000 foot level.

"My last words to those two brave army boys," said Maj. Gen. Patrick, "were 'God bless you both and may you get there well and safe.'"

At 7:19 o'clock, Ernest Smith was ready to leave within a few minutes.

Smith climbed into the cockpit at 7:24 a. m., settled down, and then clambered out again.

Smith was tendered congratulations and best wishes by Maj. Gen. Patrick.

"It is a race to Hawaii, I guess," Patrick remarked.

"Go get 'em, Ernie," howled the crowd.

"I'll grab 'em," shouted back Smith.

Maj. Gen. Patrick declared the take-off of the two army flyers was much better than they had ever

HOT TIME PLANNED FOR CHAMP KID SPELLER

CONGRESS, O., June 28.—Arrangements are complete for the reception and homecoming celebration to be held here tonight for this town's most famous citizen, Dean Lucas, 13, champion junior speller of the United States.

Residents of this isolated Wayne County hamlet number 123, but everyone of them has been a member of all the committees which formed spontaneously when word came out of Washington, D. C., last week that Dean had spelled down sixteen boy and girl state champions at the national spelling bee.

Dean and his teacher, Robert Essick, won't know the old town when their auto comes up the long hill from the West Salem railroad station tonight. Main Street is a mass of flags and bunting, and the grounds about the Congress Centralized School, where Dean Lucas is to speak tonight with Congressman John McSweeney, is ready for the vast crowd that will come from all sections of Wayne and bordering counties, and from Akron, where Dean won the state championship sponsored by The Beacon-Journal.

HONOLULU READY TO RECEIVE AVIATORS CROSSING PACIFIC

Insular Officials To Greet
Airmen—Dinners Planned

HONOLULU, June 28.—Arrangements were completed today for the reception of the flyers who will land in Hawaii after a non-stop flight from California to Honolulu. Insular officials will greet the airmen, expected to land on Wheeler Field at Schofield barracks on Wednesday morning. The public is invited to attend the demonstration at the field, but every effort will be made to keep the reception orderly.

After a two-minute greeting by officials only, the flyers will be given luncheon and a new change of clothing. Officials will then drive the weary aviators to Royal Hawaiian hotel in Honolulu. The Royal Hawaiian will be the headquarters of the flyers.

All civic organizations will participate in a luncheon Thursday in honor of the flyers on the roof of the Young Hotel. A general public reception on the old palace grounds is scheduled for Saturday. Maj. Gen. Lewis, departmental commander, will stage a banquet in honor of Lieuts. Maitland and Hegenberger Saturday night, if the army pilots are successful in their hop.

Capt. C. C. Shenzaw, of the army air corps reserve, in charge of the radio beacon upon which Maitland and Hegenberger will depend in keeping their big Fokker true to course, announced today that his apparatus is in perfect condition. Two signals will be sent during the flight, Captain Shenzaw explained. Transmitted at half-minute intervals, the letter "N" will warn the flyers their plane is veering to the north; the letter "A" will signify a deviation to the south. The angle between signals will be twelve degrees.

AMERICANS RETURN WEST AFTER VISIT TO POLISH CAPITAL

Chamberlin And Levine
Given Ovations At
Warsaw, Poland

WARSAW, Poland, June 28.—Charles A. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, famous American airmen, who made a non-stop flight from New York to Saxony, Germany, turn their record breaking monoplane Columbia westward today after a brief visit to the Polish capital.

During their short stay here the Americans were given continuous ovations. The demonstrations of friendship and admiration began when the Columbia landed at Wotow field late in the afternoon in a rain storm.

Chamberlin and Levine were greeted by high state officials and last night were guests at a state dinner. The Americans said that in some respects the flight from Marienbad was worse than most of the trip over the Atlantic. They flew through rain and wind and heavy fog, being compelled to rise at times to an altitude of nearly 16,000 feet. A gale of wind buffeted the machine and the rain fell in driving torrents.

The two flyers hoped to get as far as Switzerland before night, but weather reports indicate that they are going to have a difficult time making it. If they can reach Switzerland they probably will land at Zurich.

Polish army aviators paid high tribute to the skill of the Americans. A squadron of Polish army planes had flown to the frontier yesterday to greet the Americans and escort them to Warsaw, but the fog was so thick the Poles returned, announcing that they could not find the Columbia in the thick weather. The Polish aviators reported weather conditions so bad that many persons believed that the Americans could not travel through the storm and left the flying field.

THOUSANDS HOMELESS; 100 INJURED

MOSCOW, June 28.—Several thousand persons are homeless in southern Crimea and Ukraine as the result of a terrific series of earthquake shocks which rocked the countryside for four hours on Sunday, according to word received here today. The quakes were the most violent felt in the area for 200 years.

Avalanches of rocks and earth were loosened on the mountain sides and crashed down upon 500 houses in Sebastopol, Yalta and Balaklava. While about 100 were injured, no deaths have been reported so far.

Acton, Bluffton, Ind., today were awaiting sentence, after having been found guilty late Monday, of robbing the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Payne, Paulding County, of $3,000 early in April. The men are said to have been identified as the robbers of a bank at Langrove, Ind.

Springfield Youth In Hospital—Three
Escape Hurts

Arment Loyd, 19, Springfield, O., sustained concussion of the brain, was injured about the neck, received possible internal injuries and was rendered unconscious when an auto in which he and three other Springfield youths were riding upset at the overhead bridge on the Springfield and Xenia Pike, two miles north of Xenia, at 4 p. m. Monday.

Loyd, driver of the machine, was pinned beneath the car when it overturned. His companions, none of whom were seriously hurt, extricated themselves, lifted the auto, and freed Loyd.

The youths were taken to Espey Hospital, this city, by a passing truck. Dr. P. D. Espey declared the boy regained consciousness Tuesday morning and an improvement was noted in his condition. The physician made an X-ray examination Monday.

Other occupants of the auto were Pearl Leach, 19, 60 Sycamore St., who was slightly cut about the face and arms; Paul Blazes, 924 E. Harrison St., and Horace Sidner, all of Springfield.

Loyd's father and mother were notified of the injury to their son Monday by Kenneth C. Barr, county road patrolman, who investigated the smashup, and they visited Loyd at the hospital Monday night.

The youths told Barr their car was forced from the road by a second machine as it approached the bridge, en route to Springfield. The officer thinks the machine was merely being driven down the hill at too rapid a rate of speed. One wheel was broken.

INTERESTING ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED DURING PARTY.

The engagement of Miss Anna Gerhardt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Gerhardt, Yellow Springs and Mr. Robert Brannum, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Brannum, also of Yellow Springs, was made Saturday afternoon at a party given by the bride-elect's mother and sister, Miss Fern Gerhardt, at their home.

Sweet peas and roses were profusely used about the Gerhardt home. Cards were in play during the afternoon. The announcement was disclosed when little Dorothy Gerhardt, sister of the bride-elect, "spilled the beans" by dropping a small box which contained the beans and a card, reading "Anna and Bob, August, 1927." A refreshment course was served late in the afternoon.

Those present were: Miss Anna Gerhardt, Miss Emma Bobo, Mrs. D. W. Brannum, the Misses Dorothy and Jean Brannum, Mrs. J. W. Craver, Miss Miriam Craver, Mrs. S. A. Davis, Mrs. Phyllis Gerhardt, Miss Dorothy Gerhardt, Mrs. Philip Gerhardt, Mrs. Torrence Garlough, Miss Lois Estle, Mrs. D. P. A golf luncheon will be entertained at the club, the Fourth. A mixed tournament will be played off in the afternoon.

July 15 is the date for a dinner-dance at the club. Mrs. H. L. Sayre is chairman of the committee in charge of the latter party, with Mrs. P. H. Flynn, Mrs. S. O. Hale, Mrs. R. A. Kelly and Mrs. James Wilson III serving with her.

MOTHERS ENTERTAINED BY REFORMED GLEANERS.

Sixty-eight guests enjoyed the meeting of the Gleaner Class of the First Reformed Church, Monday evening, at the church, when mothers of the members were entertained. Forty-three mothers and other invited guests were present.

The welcome address was given by the teacher, Mrs. John Eavey. The other numbers on the short program honoring the guests included: a solo by Thelma Mahlmeister, and violin duet, Lucille Larens and Dena Watkins; a solo by Thelma Glenn and a playlet "How the Story Grew" by eight members of the class.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women and children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's forty-seven years' practice he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875. He found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on the satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, it is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. It is mild and gentle in its action and does not cause griping and strain. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home, where many live someone is sure to need it quickly.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

WON'T NEED TO WORRY SO MUCH

George Bernard Shaw, who agrees with the majority of his fellow men that he is one of the cleverest writers of English arises to proclaim that there is no such thing as correct English speech. How comforting this will be to those who have tried for years to learn to say "rawther" and "righto" in the true English manner. Shaw says there are 42,767,500 dialects of English and that not one of them is eminently better than the other 42,767,499.

Now take the midwestern American who thinks his station in society depends on his ability to talk New-yorkese, to make New Yawk rhyme with walk or squawk and to banish the poor little better "r" to some limbo of unseemly and improper crudities. He need worry no longer. And the other midwesterner who went to Harvard may continue to call it Harvard instead of trying to call it Hahvahd. Even those rather red-necked Americans who talk of "goils" and "boids" instead of girls and birds may class themselves as belonging to one of the 42,767,500 varieties and hold up their heads.

The English language of England and America covers too much territory to be condensed into a peck measure of impeccable rightness. If we talk grammatically and to the point we are doing much.

THE WESTERN "WHITE HOUSE"

When President Coolidge went to Rapid City, S. D., for his summer vacation, he found a hearty welcome, and was surrounded by typical Americans. These men of the Black Hills have brushed up against pioneer conditions and have been sufficiently far removed from the cultured East to give a decided natural American flavor to the situation. There will be nothing "Yankee" about it, that is true, but the President will easily discover that it is genuinely sincere and hospitable. The President will be more able to adjust himself to the situation than many of his clerks and attaches, especially if the latter happen to be from the big cities and have never experienced a touch of the mannerisms and peculiarities only to be found in the "wide open spaces." At any rate the President and his family will enjoy themselves, will be "presidentially" treated, and will go back to Washington with a wider vision of what it means to be an American than could have been possible without this experience.

The Way of the World

WHY BOAST OF TEMPER.

How often we hear good words for high temper. It is traditional to think that the man or woman with a high temper—a badly controlled temper—has something that is a real asset in disguise. We have come to think the high-tempered man has energy, pep, drive. The fact is that high temper is a hold-over from the barbarous age when men lived by instinct. Self-control is the master quality of the human being—not temper.

MOTHERS AND COMMENCEMENTS

Commencement days are over. Youngsters have been in the foreground, parents in the background. This paragraph is for young folks. Remember—mother's heart and father's heart are made light or heavy by your way with them. You—through school—are the product of their sacrifice and devotion. If you are grateful, say so. The story is told of a mother on her death-bed. Like other mothers she had been unselfish, self-effacing. She had been too busy, to bound down with care, to think much about her children's thoughtlessness.

Now the children had come home to see her die. One of them, looking back through the years and the tears said: "What a wonderful mother you have been to us!"

And mother, looking up from her bed, saying her last words, said:

"Oh, why didn't you tell me that before?"

TACTS GETS YOU FAR

"Everything has two handles," said Epictetus, old Greek slave who became a school teacher in Rome. "Be sure you know which handle to take hold of."

To take on tact and diplomacy doesn't mean to pass up truth. To have tact doesn't mean to beat about the bush. Everything is in the approach. Tact gives you the right approach. Come at things right and you can tell the truth without brutality.

ROOSEVELT AND READING

The writer asked Kermit Roosevelt how his father managed to read so many books.

"He read all the time when he didn't just have to do something else," was the answer.

Roosevelt, going on a comparatively short sea journey, took aboard fifty books. People wondered why he was so interesting, why his mind was so active. It was because he kept his reservoir full of ideas—and he got ideas out of books. He made a business of reading hard. It's a business that pays dividends.

SONGS of a HOUSEWIFE

By Marjorie K. Rawlings
THE FACE ON THE PANSY

THERE was an old man, long ago,
Who hated flowers and gardens so,
That every one he came upon,
The cranky rascal trampled on.

Now pansies were his special bane.
Their blossoms in those days were plain.
Their simple blooms of black or yellow
Seemed to enrage the poor old fellow.

He tore up pansies by the dozens,
And violets, their second-cousins,
Until, if I am not mistaken,
He was by palsy overtaken.

The pansies saw their chance to shock
him,
In mischievous revenge to mock him;
And to this day, to his disgrace,
They wear his cross old bearded face!

KELLYGRAMS by FRED C. KELLY

OUR CANDY AND SODA HABITS

A friend who has a string of candy and soda shops tells me of the importance of certain phases of human nature.

A candy or soda counter is likely to do more business if near a five-and-ten cent store than if in a location, otherwise equally good, next to, say, a piano store. Shoppers interested in pianos are far less numerous than those who deal at the five-and-ten.

The idea is to have a neighbor who will help draw a crowd. Next to a moving-picture theater in the suburbs is a good place to sell candy or soda—though the movies have hurt the sale of cheaper candies, inasmuch as youngsters who used to save their pennies for candy, now save them for the pictures.

More candy and soda water are sold at three o'clock in the afternoon than at any other time of the day. Women shoppers are then out in great numbers. The next best hour is about eight o'clock in the evening—at which hour young men set out to call on their girls; but eight per cent more candy and soda are sold at three o'clock than at eight. Candy sales are usually to husbands anxious to square themselves for not being home earlier.

MAKING MODERN MENUS

Mrs. Jones—"Do you care for Finnan Haddie?"
Mrs. Brown—"We are all very fond of it. That reminds me that I must have some soon."
Mrs. Jones—"Try cooking them after this recipe, next time. They are delicious."

BAKED TOMATOES WITH FINNAN HADDIE

Peel the tomatoes, fit them into buttered individual baking dishes and remove a portion of the center from each. Dust the interior lightly with salt and paprika.

Place a cupful of finnan haddie, moisten with a highly seasoned cream sauce and flavor with a dash of curry powder and a few drops of Worcestershire sauce.

Fill into the tomatoes, cover with crushed dried breadcrumbs, dot with bits of butter and bake in a hot oven until the tomatoes are tender.

Serve in the baking dishes.

Many Minds SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"While the transatlantic flight is causing great public interest, I think it would be well not to forget the things done during the war. In that time feats were performed and deeds accomplished, which were overshadowed by the immensity of the war itself, which were far greater than any peace accomplishment of aviation."—Colonel C. A. Lindbergh.

"Of the three historical scourges of the race—famine, pestilence and war—two have been conquered. The movement to outlaw war is growing rapidly, not because of sentimental reasons chiefly, but through sheer force of economical necessity and human security. It is a challenge to the graduates of the universities of the world. Certainly we in America will not say the thing is impossible. What is needed is conscientious and intelligent citizenship."—Professor William E. Lingelback, University of Pennsylvania.

For the pictures. What helps sales is that many happy young couples quietly hold hands and munch candy while witnessing events on the screen.

A candy and soda store in a small city where three thousand people pass its doors each day will do more business than if it were located where three thousand people pass in a large city. And, all other conditions being equal, it will do still better with exactly the same amount of traffic in the suburbs of a large city. For some reason, a man strolling along a street in a small town or in the suburbs is much more disposed to pause and buy candy or soda water than he would be were he walking through the heart of a metropolis. Perhaps it is because, in the quieter locality, unless he eats candy there is not much else for him to do.

People naturally like cooling drinks on hot days. Yet there is such a thing as having weather too hot. When the thermometer rises above a certain point, sales will be less than if the temperature were not quite as high. This is surprising, and yet the explanation is simple. The weather is so hot that nobody wants to make the exertion necessary to walk to the soda fountain! However, on an atrociously hot day, though the total sales of soda may be lower than usual, the number of sales compared with the amount of traffic on the street are there for the sole purpose of walking to a soft-drink dispensary. From seven o'clock to nine degrees Fahrenheit seems to be the best for soda sales.

Any day of comparative idleness, such as Sunday, causes us to think of candy. People eat it, not so much to appease their appetite, as just for something to do.

Keeping HEALTHY by Dr. A. F. Currier

THE TONIC EFFECT OF LINDBERGH'S FLIGHT

What is a tonic? A substance which strengthens the heart action, deepens the respiration, improves the general condition and incidentally stimulates the imagination.

Is there anything lacking in the fitness of this definition, as a description of the effect of Lindbergh's flight?

Is there anything which has ever happened in human history, humanly speaking, which is comparable to the wide-spread effect it has had upon young and old throughout the civilized world?

They talk about his return to his mother and his country as a military conqueror would come. The parallel is not a good one. No military conqueror ever returned from his conquest without leaving behind him a trail of desolation, blood and tears. The greater the conquest, the greater the agony that goes along with it.

This conqueror has inflicted no wounds, has caused no heart ache, rather he has brought healing and comfort to the hearts of those who were sorrowing for the comrades who were less fortunate than he in their great undertaking.

Think of the daring of this adventure! True, he had had experience in flying and in flying by night. True he knew the machine which he had regarded as a part of himself, but he was going on an adventure alone, he was going where there were no search-lights to guide him by night where there were fifteen hundred miles or more of ocean which would have no mercy for any slip on the part of him or his machine.

Storm, ice, fog, might down him. Every minute he must be on the watch. If anything went wrong, good-bye to Mr. Lindbergh. And this was all foreseen, undertaken, could any but an undaunted, conquerable soul venture upon such risks? But he reached his goal, landed like the consummate master of air craft that he is, and simply announced to the amazed, expectant thousands at Le Bourget—I am Charles Lindbergh. He might have added if it had been his way—messenger from the clouds, conqueror of space, American, only that was not his way. Is this a tonic equivalent to the decision given by Lindbergh's flight? But as some tonics are more powerful, more effective than others, he added to the efficiency of this one by the most beautiful manifestations of soul and character and absence of sordidness that this poor world has seen for many a day.

I think he must be the man whom Kipling had in mind when he wrote that wonderful poem "If."

"If you can talk with crowds and keep your virtue,
Or walk with Kings nor lose the common touch,
If neither foes nor loving friends can hurt you,
If all men count with you, but none too much,
If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds worth of distance run,
The earth is yours and all that therein is in it,
And what is more, you'll be a man, my son."

Yes, and a Superman too, my friend.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
W. S. W.—Your articles are very interesting. Am 80 years of age, and sometimes get cramps in my legs at night. Will you tell me the cause, and if there is any cure for it; please state what it is.

Answer—Your trouble is probably poor circulation, and the pressure upon the legs while lying in bed interferes with the free flow of the blood. Brisk rubbing of the surface for a few minutes would probably bring relief. Am very glad you like the medical column.

Ask Dr. Currier that medical question that has been puzzling you. Confine your letter to fifty words and send stamped, addressed envelope for reply. He cannot, of course, make individual diagnoses, and he reserves the right to decide as to the propriety of queries.

OHIOANS NOTICED BELGIAN PROGRESS

OSTEND, Belgium, June 28.—Harold S. Huxtable, president of the Lakewood Rotary Club and James G. Card, president of the Cleveland Rotary, who headed the largest delegation sent to the eighth annual convention at Ostend, declared they were very much impressed by the remarkable progress Belgium has made in reconstructing her devastated regions.

"We never believed she would get on her feet this quickly," they affirmed, "but we see it has been, by the hardest kind of work and devotion to the soil."

"We confess, too, that after seeing so many poor women, many of them very old, laboring the fields and doing all kinds of hard work, our hearts were pulled and we almost felt we would begin to plead for debt cancellation."

"Thinking matters over more seriously, however, we agree that the Hon. Theodore E. Burton is right after all."

The Theatre

With a dozen companies working, preparing or cutting, the United Artists studio is now in the midst of the busiest period of its history. Never before, perhaps, has such a galaxy of starring, directorial and writing talent been concentrated on one lot.

Douglas Fairbanks is making "The Gaucho," a spectacular story of South America adventure, under the direction of F. Richard Jones. It is Doug's most ambitious effort.

Mary Pickford has started work on her long-awaited opus of the shop girl. It is titled "My Best Girl" and it affords "America's Sweetheart" a brand new characterization. Herbert Brenon is bringing the best-selling English novel, "Sorrow and Son," to the screen for United Artists, with H. B. Warner, in his first role since "The King of Kings." Alice Joyce, Anna Q. Nilsson, Carmel Myers, Norman Trevor, Louis Wolheim, Mickey McLean and other noted players. The company leaves for England in July to shoot about half of the picture.

Constance Talmadge, directed by Mal St. Clair is starring in "Dejeune de Soles," a gay story of modern Paris. It is Constance's last feature for First National release before she joins United Artists. Corinne Griffith's first United Artist picture "The Garden of Eden," which has a modern continental locale, is well into production. In the supporting cast are Louise Dresser, Rose Dione, Edward Martindel, David Torrence, Andre Beranger and Andres de Segurola.

Norma Talmadge has completed her first United Artists picture, "The Dove," which now is in the cutting room, and has gone to Europe for a vacation before

Buster Keaton, having completed his United Artists laugh feature, "College," will soon plunge into work on another comedy. Charles "Chuck" Reisner, director and Carl Harbaugh, scenarist, are preparing an original story for the frozen-faced star. The Keaton unit of the Joseph M. Schenck organization continues to maintain its own studio about a mile away from the United Artists lot.

Among the pictures in the cutting room at the United Artists studio are "Two Arabian Knights," directed by Lewis Milestone and starring William Boyd, with Louis Wolheim and Mary Astor in featured roles, and "Topsy and Eva," a feature which marks Rosetta Vivian Duncan's screen debut. "Topsy and Eva" will have its premiere at Grauman's Egyptian Theater, on June tenth, with the Duncan sisters themselves in the prologue.

How to Achieve Beauty

DEODORANTS AND PERSPIRATION

In further regard to the matter of personal daintiness, today I am going to touch on excessive perspiration and the use of deodorants.

The problem of excessive perspiration is probably one of the most disconcerting of all matters relating to personal hygiene, as the slightest trace of bodily odor will completely mar all other claims to good grooming and personal daintiness. At the same time I want to warn you against the use of drastic deodorants which render the excretory glands permanently inactive.

It is a very dangerous thing to do, as one-third of all the impurities of the system should be eliminated through the pores and a healthy normal person should "pour" forth something like one and one-half quarts of perspiration each day.

There are two kinds of perspiration, and they might be termed "perceptible" and "imperceptible." Imperceptible perspiration takes the form of vapor at it leaves the body, and is therefore not noticeable, whereas "perceptible" perspiration is slower to evaporate as it leaves the body, becomes visible, and oftentimes gives forth an undesirable odor. This is the sort of perspiration we have to counteract the effects of, and the best way to do so is by immaculate cleanliness (the daily bath) as well as by the moderate use of mild deodorants, which neutralize perspiration odors but which do not permanently stop its flow. The use of a deodorant should be followed by a generous dusting of a talcum powder.

A simple deodorant powder which you can compound yourself is made as follows: One and a half drams of camphor, four ounces orris root, sixteen ounces finely pulverized starch. The armpits is the part of the body where the odor of excessive or "perceptible" perspiration makes itself most apparent. It is therefore well to keep the hair under the arms closely shaved and to consistently use a mild deodorant.

The palms of the hands and the soles of the feet have a greater number of perspiratory glands than any other part of the body, and the perspiration should never be impeded at these sources. If you suffer from excessively perspiring feet that produce an unpleasant odor, I would suggest warm foot baths and the use of Castile soap once or even twice a day, if possible, and the after dusting of an antiseptic talcum powder. One that is efficacious and that you can mix easily at home is made as follows. Boracic acid, one ounce; precipitated chalk, two ounces; powdered talc, seven ounces.

For perspiring hands try the following: Dip your palms into very cold water, dry thoroughly, use a good astringent, and rub with boracic acid powder.

Do not ever try to conceal an unpleasant odor of perspiration by the use of powder or perfumes. Immaculate cleanliness is the first essential to personal daintiness.

ROTARIANS DEFEAT CENTRAL AS KIMBER SUBDUES CLOUTERS

A four-cornered tie for second place in the Xenia Playground League was created when the Rotary Club defeated Central High School 15 to 12 in a close soft ball game at Cox Memorial Athletic Field Monday night.

The tie is between the Rotary Club, Central High School, Boy Scouts and Senior Business Men, each of the teams in question having won and lost four games.

The Junior Business Men have won seven and lost one game while the Kiwanis Club has won one and dropped seven league contests to date.

Rotarians piled up a safe lead in the first three innings Monday but the high school athletes, fighting a game uphill battle, rallied to score seven runs in the sixth and threatened to wipe out the advantage.

Rotarians scored five in the first, two more in the second, six in the third and two in the sixth.

Kimber was on the hill for the Rotarians and was in rare form. The firemen play the butchers in a Class B game Tuesday night.

Central lineup: Tull, c; Gibney, r; Mattox, rf; Cramer, 2b; Henrie, 3b; Huston, ss; Ballantyne, lf; Creswell, f; Weald, cf; Bickett, cf.

Rotary lineup: Cox, ss; P. McCurrin, lf; Myler, 1b; Kimber, p; S. McClellan, cf; Sayre, rf; Ervick, c; Baldwin, 3b; McElree, 2b.

Score by innings: Central 0 3 1 0 1 0 0 0—12; Rotary 5 2 6 0 2 0 0 x—15.

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

THE GUMPS—THE OLD LEG IS HEALING

The Rovin' Ritzies By Flo Frederick

And they called him "Sailor Tag" because of knots he'd always brag. "I can't tie this knot so it will stay," said the exasperated Tag. He had been working with his kite string for half an hour and each time just as he thought he had a good knot, it would start to break loose and he would almost lose his new kite.

"Why don't you tie a square knot," called over Marty from his place on the cliff, where his airplane kite was flying easily in the wind.

"I only know how to tie a plain knot and it doesn't hold," answered the discouraged Tag. His kite was brand new and he was so anxious to give it a try and yet in spite of all his efforts, his knots wouldn't hold and he was afraid to take a chance of letting the wind have its way with the poorly tied rope.

Marty, seeing that Tag was getting quite worked up over his difficulties with the rope tied his own kite to a fence post and went to his companion's aid.

"My uncle's a sea captain and he's the one who taught me how to

"Then all you have to do is to twist the ends around each other and tighten the knot."

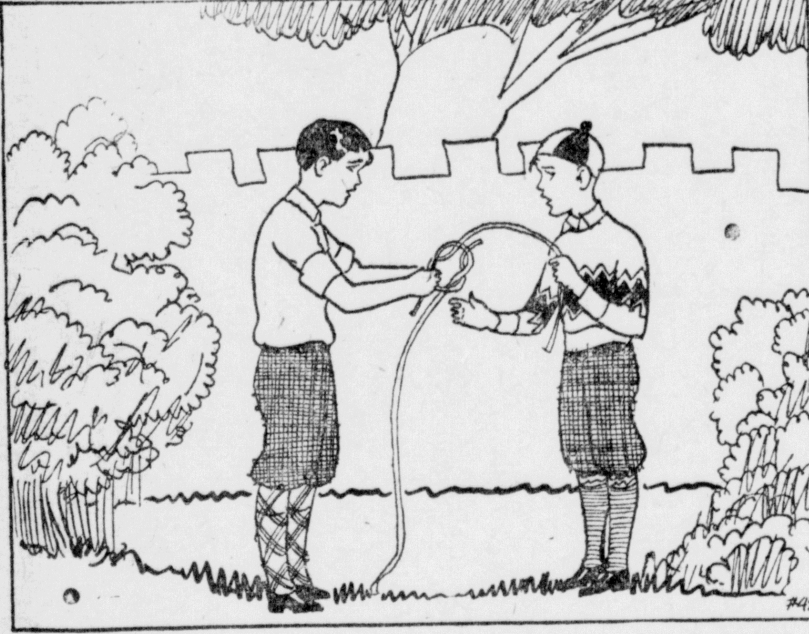

"It looks simple enough when you are doing it, but I don't think I could remember all of that," said the somewhat puzzled Tag.

"Get another piece of rope and follow me step by step," advised Marty. "That's the way my uncle taught me."

Tag found another piece of rope quickly enough and was soon following Marty's movements step by step with his own rope ends. The second time he tried, the rope seemed to fall into place with no effort at all.

"You're getting it," encouraged Marty. "It won't be long before your fingers will tie a square knot almost automatically. The hard thing is to tell someone else how you do it."

Tag was greatly pleased over this new discovery in rope tying. Of course he had often heard boys speaking and in many cases brag-tie knots. I think a square knot ought to hold this all right." So saying, he set to work, explaining to Tag as he went along just how it was done.

"You hold the two ends of rope in your hands, the one in your right and the other in your left. Now cross the left-hand rope on top of the right and hold both with the left hand (shown in the illustration). Reach under with the right hand and twist the top rope around the one underneath. Do you follow me?"

"Yes," answered Tag, not taking his eyes off the rope in Marty's hand. He had always wanted to be able to tie a real knot that would hold and he didn't know that Marty knew so much about it.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

Philip Wynne Tracy IV has had a childish engagement with Natalie Jones. Becoming interested in Lyra Hilliard, an old friend of his mother, he soon finds himself falling in love with her. Natalie, overhearing him making love to Lyra, breaks her engagement. It all comes to nothing, however, for America enters the World war.

Phil enlists, and just before leaving for France he meets Natalie again and they plan to be married. The immediate departure of the troops, however, prevents this. The regiment is sent to the front soon after arriving in France, and while on a dangerous mission Phil is wounded and receives the cross de guerre for bravery.

After the armistice, Phil is awarded a scholarship in a French university, and while in Paris he comes face to face with his mother, who has come to France to find him. She is accompanied by Major Auckland, who is devoted to her.

Mrs. Tracy learns that Phil intends to marry Pat, a rich French divorcee. She refuses to give her consent to the marriage.

Phil compromises with his mother. If she will refuse Major Auckland's proposal of marriage, he will give up Pat for two years. She agrees and they take passage for America.

Unknown to Phil, Mrs. Tracy invites Natalie to breakfast with them the morning after their return home. Phil is somewhat upset by the change in Natalie. She is apparently frivolous in manner and dress.

Here the story further unfolds—

CHAPTER LIII WYNNE RESOLVES TO TRY AGAIN

PHILIP TRACY hesitated a moment, and then he repeated Natalie's question, "How do I like her?" She is so surprising that I must decline to answer—yet.

"So you are living all alone in a little flat?"

"Not entirely alone," she answered, after a moment.

"I have a companion about 40 years old, and some servants. Dad's just hopping mad about it, but for once he can do nothing. I'm of age and it's my money and Mother and Jerry would not let him forbid me his house."

"Now, Wynne, don't you look at you, too, did not approve. Yes, you're going to, but I hope you're pretending to be a Great Stone Face and that some day I'll get back under it and find the Wynne that Rod and I used to know."

For one moment Philip thought he caught a glimpse of earnestness and sincerity in the lapis lazuli eyes. He marched forward quickly, but Natalie eluded him. With a "Shall I sit here, Mrs. Tracy?" she passed to the other side of the table from where he was standing, and sat down.

ANNE TRACY had said nothing all through this conversation, entirely made up of small talk. She was trying to discover if Natalie was acting or if she had really become the frothy, frivolous girl. She knew that some girls change in just this sort of way when they get from under the dominating restraint of their parents.

She could see that Phil was quite as much at sea as she was, and she smiled as Phil asked rather wistfully, "Has everybody in America changed as much as you have, Natalie?"

"Of course they have, Wynne. The old girl herself has changed. America has stepped out since the war. Just at present she is doing a toe dance on the top of the world to jazz music. You'll have to join in the grand march. Mind your step or you'll get left on the side lines."

"I'm very tired of marching, Natalie, but it may be amusing when I get used to it."

"Oh, Wynne, I hope you'll get used to it soon. I don't want you to be like Jerry. He's been getting more and more like a cold bread pudding, with an unsuspected soul of whipped prunes since he's been with father. I'm getting so I hate these mollified who haven't guts enough to talk up for themselves. (That's a word I learned from the boys who have come back from overseas. You thought to have heard it enough not to be shocked.)"

PHILIP looked across the table and smiled. This child was somebody quite new, but she was interesting after all.

Natalie returned Phil's smile with enthusiasm, for he still had a way with women, although he thought he had lost it.

"I saw your friend, Mrs. Hilliard, the other day, Mrs. Tracy."

This was thunder from a clear sky. Both Phil and his mother were aware that Natalie knew all about Lyra, but neither of them guessed that the girl was not aware of the break between Mrs. Tracy and her old friend on account of Philip.

Anne Tracy, however, was too honest to pass this over with the usual conventional hypocrisy.

"I don't think she's a friend of mine any more, Natalie," she said.

"I beg your pardon, Mrs. Tracy. I didn't know that. Indeed, she spoke very beautifully of you the last time I saw her. I like her much better than I used to. She doesn't henna her hair any more and it seems the war has made her quite human. She isn't thinking of herself all the time and the impression she is making on any man she happens to be near. She has dropped her youthful and flapperish airs and it's very becoming. Now you, Wynne, have grown so old and dignified that I'm really afraid of you."

"And you, Natalie, have grown so young and frivolous and bewitchingly lovely, that I'm afraid of you."

"I'm not all that, Wynne. It's just the contrast between the American girls and the French. Did you really like them?"

Philip grinned. "Well, I thought I did while I was over there."

"That's a nice compliment," Natalie exclaimed, almost the nicest I've received since you went away. It sounds more like you than anything I've heard you say since I came to breakfast."

"But you're not eating anything, my dear," put in Mrs. Tracy.

"No one eats anything nowadays. We must keep our boyish figures, you know. And now I really must run. A awfully sorry, Mrs. Tracy, but I had seemed to find a dozen things for me to do for him this morning. He knew I was coming here to give Wynne the once over and say 'Welcome home'."

AGAIN Philip smiled. "Your father doesn't seem to have lost any of his old prejudices, my dear."

"Well, he can't say very much against a man who has stopped a bullet in such a way that only a cross de guerre is supposed to cover the scar."

"Good-bye, dear Mrs. Tracy. You'll let me come again soon, won't you? And as for you, Wynne—"

She turned and held out both hands. She seemed about to speak. Was there a mist of pain in the dark blue eyes? He could not tell, and before he had decided, she was gone.

Mother and son looked at each other in silence for some seconds after the girl had left the room.

"It's rather an overpowering Natalie, isn't it, Mum?"

"Philip, I think she's acting."

"Don't be foolish. No one could act as well as she did this morning."

There was a grinding of gears in front of the house. Quickly Philip got up and went to the window. There he saw Natalie, her head bent over the wheel, seemingly making futile efforts to drive the car.

He did not realize until he had gotten to her that she was crying.

"Natalie, Natalie, dear," he exclaimed in consternation.

"Go way, Wynne Tracy. What are you doing here? Don't you see I don't want you around?"

"But I thought you were having trouble with the car." Phil fairly stammered over the words.

"I wasn't having trouble with or over anything. Go way and leave me. I don't need your help. I was just crying—because I'm so lonesome without Rod."

Philip Tracy raised Natalie's face. "This is not the girl who took breakfast with mother this morning. I didn't know that girl at all."

"Well, you've nothing on me, Wynne Tracy. I came to the conclusion that I had never known you."

SHE made a gesture as though she were going to start the car.

"Wait a minute, Natalie. Can't we begin all over again?"

"No, Wynne. We were always beginning over and never ending anywhere. You really don't want me to begin again. You're not really sorry because I'm crying. It just makes you uncomfortable to see me cry. I wish you'd go away. I've

ALLEGED ATTACK ON AMERICAN WOMAN IN FRANCE IS PROBED

By FREDERIC WILLIAM WILE
Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright, 1927
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 28.—State department officials are investigating a mysterious attack in

MISS MARY STEWART
France upon a woman official of the United States government. Miss Mary Stewart, director of the junior division of the federal employment service at Washington. Miss Stewart, who went to Europe in the spring on an official mission was waylaid in an American war cemetery outside of Paris by a man who had been assigned to act as her guide. In an attempt to rob Miss Stewart of her purse and other valuables, the man knocked her down, broke one of her legs, dislocated some of her teeth, and otherwise subjected her to injury. She screamed loud enough to attract the attention of others and her assailant made his escape in fear of arrest before he had succeeded in despoiling Miss Stewart of any of her property.

Details of the case have been in possession of the state department for several weeks, but pending the clearing up of all the circumstances it has apparently been decided to withhold the facts from public knowledge.

Suffers From Shock.
Miss Stewart, her friends in Washington understand, also suffered a severe nervous shock from her distressing experience, in addition to her physical harm. They are informed that she required treatment in one of the American hospitals at Paris for some time after the episode, but was later able to resume the work which took her to Europe. This concerned employment systems maintained by various governments, in which Miss Stewart was inquiring on behalf of the department of labor, with which the United States employment service is affiliated. Her comrades in the department understand that at least three countries had been studied by Miss Stewart before the affair in the Paris war cemetery. This is said to have occurred some time in May. Italy, Switzerland and France were the lands Miss Stewart had already visited.

The young woman employment service official makes her home with her mother in the Wardman Park Hotel in Washington. Beyond stating that her daughter has sent word that she will be home by July 1, Mrs. Stewart declines to discuss the Paris incident in any form. Miss Stewart is one of the several women in important executive positions at the department of labor and has made an enviable record in the employment service, which is charged with the duty of fostering, promoting and developing the welfare of the wage-earners of the United States. She is chief assistant to Francis I. Jones, the director-general of the employment service.

UNITED STATES TIRES ARE GOOD TIRES

Putting plenty of the right kind of rubber in the right place is a most important element in the building of United States Tires. This Web Cord machine soaks all the Cotton Cord for Royal Cord Balloons with pure rubber latex. Latex is the right kind of rubber to impregnate the Cotton Cord.

Get more for your money

If you were building a tire for yourself, you I would not skimp on the rubber. Neither do we. This Company owns enormous rubber plantations including the largest producing plantation in the world. On these plantations are 10,000,000 rubber trees—pedigreed stock.

We have invented Sprayed Rubber—the outstanding process for producing rubber. Sprayed Rubber is the strongest and most uniform rubber known. It is made without the use of smoke or acids.

We have invented Web Cord, the most modern way of combining rubber and cords.

The policy of "Plenty of Rubber" plus the ability to get the rubber and the skill to put the right kind of rubber in the right place, shows itself in the quality of Royal Cord Balloons on the wheels of your car.

FEAR REVIVAL OF ANGLO-JAP ALLIANCE

WELCOME, Y. P. B. DELEGATES

Xenia extended its oft-boasted hospitality to delegates to the state convention of the Young Peoples' Branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union Tuesday.

Delegates arriving Tuesday morning foretold an assemblage of between 200 and 300 young people from all over Ohio to attend the sessions of the four-day meeting here.

They found themselves welcomed into Xenia homes, for Xenia's hospitality took the form of receiving these young visitors into private residences for lodging and breakfasts, all that the committee asked.

Entertainment for the visitors has been prepared by a local committee, and includes interesting features. During the stay of the delegates this city hopes to conduct itself in a manner that will leave a lasting impression of good-will and friendship with these emissaries from our sister Ohio cities.

AMERICANS RETURN WEST AFTER VISIT TO POLISH CAPITAL

Chamberlin And Levine Given Ovations At Warsaw, Poland

WARSAW, Poland, June 28.—Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, famous American aviators, who made a non-stop flight from New York to Saxony, Germany, turn their record-breaking monoplane Columbia westward today after a brief visit to the Polish capital.

During their short stay here the Americans were given continuous ovations. The demonstrations of friendship and admiration began when the Columbia landed at Wosotow field late in the afternoon in a rainstorm.

Chamberlin and Levine were greeted by high state officials and last night were guests at a state dinner. The Americans said that in some respects the flight from Marienbad was worse than most of the trip over the Atlantic. They flew through rain and wind and heavy fog, being compelled to rise at times to an altitude of nearly 16,000 feet. A gale of wind buffeted the machine and the rain fell in driving torrents.

The two flyers hope to get as far as Switzerland before night, but weather reports indicate that they are going to have a difficult time making it. If they can reach Switzerland they probably will land at Zurich.

Polish army aviators paid high tribute to the skill of the Americans. A squadron of Polish army planes had flown to the frontier yesterday to greet the Americans and escort them to Warsaw, but the fog was so thick the Poles returned, announcing that they could not find the Columbia in the thick weather. The Polish aviators reported weather conditions so bad that many persons believed that the Americans could not travel through the storm and left the flying field.

THOUSANDS HOMELESS; 100 INJURED

MOSCOW, June 28.—Several thousand persons are homeless in southern Crimea and Ukraine as the result of a terrific series of earthquake shocks which rocked the countryside for four hours on Sunday, according to word received here today. The quakes were the most violent felt in the area for 200 years.

Avalanches of rocks and earth were loosened on the mountain sides and crashed down upon 500 houses in Sebastopol, Yalta and Balaklava. While about 100 were injured, no deaths have been reported so far.

CONVICT ROBBERS OF PAYNE, O., BANK

PAULDING, O., June 28.—George Andronetto, Johnstown, Pa., and Clinton P. Acton, Bluffton, Ind., today were awaiting sentence, after having been found guilty late Monday of robbing the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Payne, Paulding County, of $3,000 early in April. The jury deliberated three hours hearing evidence for five days. Sentence will be imposed, probably Thursday.

The men are said to have been identified as the robbers of a bank at Lingrove, Ind.

AUTOIST RECEIVES SERIOUS INJURIES WHEN AUTO UPSETS

Springfield Youth In Hospital — Three Escape Hurts

Arment Loyd, 19, Springfield, O., sustained concussion of the brain, was injured about the neck, received possible internal injuries and was rendered unconscious when an auto in which he and three other Springfield youths were riding upset at the overhead bridge on the Springfield and Xenia Pike, two miles north of Xenia, at 4 p. m. Monday.

Loyd, driver of the machine, was planned beneath the car when it overturned. His companions, none of whom were seriously hurt, extricated themselves, lifted the auto, and freed Loyd.

The youths were taken to Espey Hospital, this city, by a passing truck. Dr. P. D. Espey declared the boy regained consciousness Tuesday morning and an improvement was noted in his condition. The physician made an X-ray examination Monday.

Other occupants of the auto were Pearl Leach, 19, 60 Sycamore St., who was slightly cut about the face and arms; Paul Blazes, 924 E. Harrison St., and Horace Sidner, all of Springfield.

Loyd's father and mother were notified of the injury to their son Monday by Kenneth C. Barr, county road patrolman, who investigated the smashup, and they visited Loyd at the hospital Monday night.

The youths told Barr their car was forced from the road by a second machine as it approached the bridge, en route to Springfield. The officer thinks the machine was merely being driven down the hill at too rapid a rate of speed. One wheel was broken.

COAL MEN MEET

ENGLISH ATTITUDE THREATENS TO TAKE LID FROM QUESTION

Britain Virtually Renounces Naval Parity Program

WASHINGTON, June 28.

—Great Britain's aggressive attitude at the tri-partite naval conference—and the fact that Japan is supporting her in that attitude—has led Washington officialdom to strongly suspect that the far-famed Anglo-Japanese alliance is being resurrected at Geneva.

This alliance, a prickly thorn in British-American relations for many years, was supposedly killed and buried at the Washington conference in 1921 by Charles Evans Hughes. It was to secure the abrogation of this anti-American partnership that the American government departed from its traditional policy of "no alliances" and entered into a treaty with England, Japan and France for the mutual protection of each other's possessions and interests in the Pacific. For six years the Anglo-Japanese alliance has apparently remained dead. But the sequence of events at Geneva for the last ten days has about convinced officials here that it is emerging from its grave of again confound American statesmen.

First, Great Britain has virtually renounced the naval parity with the United States, which she so eagerly accepted at Washington. She insists at Geneva that "Britain's control of the seas is vital to Britain's continued existence," while the first lord of the Admiralty, W. C. Bridgeman, bluntly informed the American delegates that "naval equality for America is simply a luxury and a political blip."

Second, in the all-important matter of cruisers and auxiliary fighting craft, Britain has refused to call the equality she so eagerly accepted at a time when the United States was laying down the world's greatest navy.

Third, the British delegates have insisted upon reopening the question of capital ship tonnage, established by the Washington treaty. This amounts virtually to an attempt to revise that treaty and recall the equality she so eagerly accepted at a time when the United States was laying down the world's greatest navy.

Japan's delegates at Geneva at first supported the American delegation in refusing to consider the reopening of the Washington treaty. Then, suddenly, and after consulting with Tokyo, the Japanese delegates blandly announced they believed there was something in Britain's proposal after all, and that Japan was willing to discuss the question of capital ships.

This surprising about-face on the part of Japan's delegates followed a series of extended conferences between the British and the Japanese at which it is understood some important questions concerning China also were discussed.

A strong suspicion exists in Washington that the Anglo-Japanese agreement at Geneva is merely consulting an arm of the Japanese government concerning China. Britain is in a precarious position in China and throughout the Orient. She needs a "big stick" partner there, and the United States declined to be it. Japan would fill the bill nicely. A revival of British-Japanese unity in China, as against the American policy of peace and the open door, would provide American statesmanship with a pretty problem.

Washington continues to marvel at the marked difference in Britain's policy in the arms conference of 1921 and the arms conference at Geneva in 1927. "A Jekyll and Hyde difference," said one official.

GOVERNOR INSTRUCTS SHERIFF TO USE EVERY EFFORT TO PRESERVE PEACE AT MINE

COLUMBUS, June 28.—The sheriff of Guernsey County today was in receipt of instructions from Governor Vic Donahey to make every effort to preserve order in the vicinity of the Cleveland Collieries Company's mine at Kimbolton, two miles south of Cambridge.

The governor's instructions were wired after Herbert Rosenthal, representing the company, appealed late Monday to the governor for aid in preventing union miners from interfering with operation of the Kimbolton mine.

IN RACE BY AIR FOR HAWAIIAN ISLANDS

Ernest Smith, (right), air mail pilot and his navigator, Captain C. H. Carter, missed their hopes of being the first to take off across the Pacific when the army flyers, Maitland and Hegenberger, started before them from Oakland Tuesday morning. Smith immediately boarded his plane to follow the army aviators.

"AVIATOR WITH BROKEN NECK" PLANS TO FLY TO PACIFIC COAST WEDNESDAY

HAWAIIAN FLYER IS HURRYING TO START RACE ACROSS OCEAN

Richard Grace Only Awaits Propellor To Begin Flight

HONOLULU, June 28.—Fearful of losing out in the race to be first to span the Pacific by air, Richard Grace, the "aviator with a broken neck," and so-called navy entrant, today speeded up arrangements for his proposed Hawaii-to-the-mainland flight. Grace hopes to take off tomorrow morning.

With the exception of a new propeller, Grace's plane was all set to go. A propeller, shipped aboard the liner Maui, will arrive in Hawaiian waters today and will be carried to Pearl Harbor by sea-plane.

At Pearl Harbor, mechanics will install the propeller and make a final, hasty inspection of Grace's monoplane. The flyer will then chart his plane to the island of Kauai, whence he will zoom away for California.

Mechanics worked all night, tightening struts, nuts, and making a thorough survey of the plane. Grace's ship, although smaller, is of the same general type as Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis."

Using a borrowed propeller, Grace made a test flight late yesterday, flying over Ford Island and Pearl Harbor for half an hour. The aviator was not quite satisfied with the speed shown by his machine, but expects installation of the regular propeller to help rectify this defect.

Grace, like Lindbergh, will have difficulty in seeing straight ahead. By standing erect, he can peep over the top of the cockpit, but for the most part he will rely upon vision through side windows.

Grace will vary his altitude in accordance with the wind and the weather, he stated today.

JUNE ACCIDENTS OUTNUMBER JUNE BRIDES

Swift turnovers in the automotive field are being reported from streets and county roads as June swings undecided between the title of "The Month of Brides" and "The Month of Accidents."

Increased activity among the summer tourists, the picnickers and the common variety of joyriders, indicate that there may be more auto accidents than June brides during the month.

ARMY FLYERS FIRST TO LEAVE OAKLAND; SMITH FOLLOWS THEM

Maitland And Hegenberger Start In Fog With Best Wishes Of General Patrick—Army Planes Escort Aviators

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, OAKLAND, Cal., June 28.—Ernest Smith, air mail pilot, accompanied by Charles Carter, took off for Hawaii at 9:37 a. m. today.

OAKLAND MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, OAKLAND, Calif., June 28.—On their way to new triumphs and taking the honor of being the first to start the race to bridge the Pacific between California and Hawaii, the giant army monoplane started its take-off here today at 7:08 a. m., bearing Lieuts. Lester J. Maitland and Albert F. Hegenberger.

Down the fairway went the big plane. A big cloud of dust blew up behind. A crowd of 75,000 went wild and roared in excitement.

The big plane taxied a little more than a mile down the runway and then rose gracefully from the field to a beautiful take-off half a minute later.

The Fokker headed over the island city of Alameda, crossing the Oakland estuary on its long flight toward Hawaii.

They then turned west and soon faded to a speck in the sky. A fog over the bay impeded visibility.

Two planes escorted the Fokker, one going on each side of the army entrant.

Ernest Smith, air mail pilot and civilian entry in the race, immediately ordered his plane to get set for an immediate take-off. The civilian flyer planned to hop off in pursuit of the big Fokker within twenty minutes.

The Fokker, before disappearing in the haze, reached an altitude of 6,000 feet. Five planes from Crissy Field flew 3,000 feet below. Other pursuit planes formed a personal escort to the Fokker bying on the same 6,000 foot level.

"My last words to those two brave army boys," said Maj. Gen. Patrick, "were 'God bless you both and may you get there well and safe.'"

At 7:19 o'clock, Ernest Smith was ready to leave within a few minutes.

Smith climbed into the cockpit at 7:20 a. m., settled down, and then clambered out again.

Smith was tendered congratulations and best wishes by Maj. Gen. Patrick.

"It is a race to Hawaii, I guess," Patrick remarked.

"Go get 'em, Ernie," howled the crowd.

"I'll grab 'em," shouted back Smith.

Maj. Gen. Patrick declared the take-off of the two army flyers was much better than they had ever

HOT TIME PLANNED FOR CHAMP KID SPELLER

CONGRESS, O., June 28.—Arrangements are complete for the reception and homecoming celebration to be held here tonight for this town's most famous citizen, Dean Lucas, 13, champion junior speller of the United States.

Residents of this isolated Wayne County hamlet number 123, but everyone of them has been a member of all the committees which formed spontaneously when word came out of Washington, D. C., last week that Dean had spelled down sixteen boy and girl state champions at the national spelling bee.

Dean and his teacher, Robert Eslick, won't know the old town when their auto comes up the long hill from the West Salem railroad station tonight. Main Street is a mass of flags and bunting, and the grounds about the Congress Centralized School, where Dean Lucas is to speak tonight with Congressman John McSweeney, is ready for the vast crowd that will come from all sections of Wayne and bordering counties, and from Akron, where Dean won the state championship sponsored by The Beacon-Journal.

It will rise 150 feet above the level of San Francisco Bay, have two decks, each forty feet wide, and be constructed so that shipping will pass underneath at any point. Two of

Insular Officials To Greet Airmen—Dinners Planned

HONOLULU, June 28.—Arrangements were completed today for the reception of the flyers who will land in Hawaii after a non-stop flight from California to Honolulu.

Insular officials will greet the airmen, expected to land on Wheeler Field at Schofield barracks on Wednesday morning. The public is invited to attend the demonstration at the field, but every effort will be made to keep the reception orderly.

After a two-minute greeting by officials only, the flyers will be given luncheon and a new chance of clothing. Officials will then drive the weary aviators to Royal Hawaiian hotel in Honolulu. The Royal Hawaiian will be the headquarters of the flyers.

All civic organizations will participate in a luncheon Thursday in honor of the flyers on the roof garden of the Young Hotel. A general public reception on the old palace grounds is scheduled for Saturday. Maj. Gen. Lewis, department commander, will stage a banquet in honor of Lieuts. Maitland and Hegenberger Saturday night, if the army pilots are successful in their hop.

Capt. C. C. Shangraw, of the army air corps reserve, in charge of the radio beacon upon which Maitland and Hegenberger will depend in keeping their big Fokker true to course, announced today that his apparatus is in perfect condition. Two signals will be sent during the flight, Captain Shangraw explained. Transmitted at half-minute intervals, the letter "N" will warn the flyers their plane is veering to the north; the letter "A" will signify a deviation to the south. The angle between signals will be twelve degrees.

INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO WHEN ASKING WOMAN FOR RIDE

Harold Minister, 21, Athens, O., was painfully bruised about the body, particularly the left thigh, but not seriously hurt when knocked down by an auto driven by Nellie Moore, N. Detroit St., on the Springfield Pike, near the city limits at 8:30 o'clock, Tuesday morning.

Minister was rushed to the offices of Drs. B. R. and R. R. McClellan, E. Second St., where an X-ray by S. H. McClellan developed he sustained no broken bones. His injuries were dressed by Dr. A. C. Messenger.

Minister and his brother, Edward, 26, had been visiting their cousin, Donald Weaver, Wilmington Pike. The two were driven to shortly beyond the city limits early Tuesday in Weaver's motorcar, where they were waiting for a "hop" to Springfield.

The brothers are said to have hailed the automobile driven by Nellie Moore and the latter, instead of stopping, averted the machine in such a manner as to hit the younger brother before he could jump aside.

No arrest was made.

PRELIMINARY WORK FOR HOME COTTAGES FINANCED BY BOARD

COLUMBUS, O., June 28.—The state emergency board today authorized expenditure of approximately $2,000 of state funds to defray cost of necessary work preliminary to construction of twenty cottages this summer and fall at the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphan's Home, Xenia. An appropriation of $73,000 for the cottages, authorized by the Ohio legislature, will become available August 9.

The contemplated improvement, recommended by the board of trustees of the home, was endorsed by Governor Victor Donahue, which some months ago, investigated conditions at the home and submitted a report to the governor embodying recommendations for improving conditions there. State Supreme Judge E. S. Mathias, Van Wert, was chairman of the committee.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

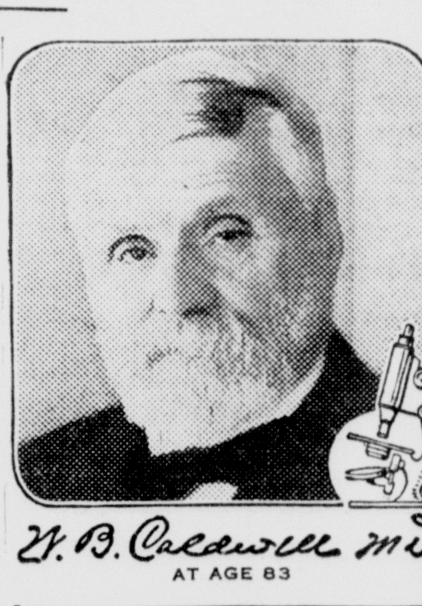

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's forty-seven years' practice he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875. He found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on the satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, it is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. It is mild and gentle in its action and does not cause griping and strain. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home, where many live someone is sure to need it quickly. We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

WON'T NEED TO WORRY SO MUCH

George Bernard Shaw, who agrees with the majority of his fellow men that he is one of the cleverest writers of English arises to proclaim that there is no such thing as correct English speech. How comforting this will be to those who have tried for years to learn to say "rawther" and "righto" in the true English manner. Shaw says there are 42,767,500 dialects of English and that not one of them is eminently better than the other 42,767,499.

Now take the midwestern American who thinks his station in society depends on his ability to talk New-yorkese, to make New York rhyme with walk or squawk and to banish the poor little better "it" to some limbo of unseemly and improper crudities. He need worry no longer. And the other midwesterner who went to Harvard may continue to call it Harvvard instead of trying to call it Hahvahd. Even those rather red-necked Americans who talk of "goils" and "booids" instead of girls and birds may class themselves as belonging to one of the 42,767,500 varieties and hold up their heads.

The English language of England and America covers too much territory to be condensed into a peck measure of impeccable rightness. If we talk grammatically and to the point we are doing much.

THE WESTERN "WHITE HOUSE"

When President Coolidge went to Rapid City, S. D., for his summer vacation, he found a hearty welcome, and was surrounded by typical Americans. These men of the Black Hills have brushed up against pioneer conditions and have been sufficiently far removed from the cultured East to give a decided natural American flavor to the situation. There will be nothing "Yankee" about it, that is true, but the President will easily discover that it is genuinely sincere and hospitable. The President will be more able to adjust himself to the situation than many of his clerks and attaches, especially if the latter happen to be from the big cities and have never experienced a touch of the mannerisms and peculiarities only to be found in the "wide open spaces." At any rate the President and his family will enjoy themselves, will be "presidentially" treated, and will go back to Washington with a wider vision of what it means to be an American than could have been possible without this experience.

The Way of the World

WHY BOAST OF TEMPER.

How often we hear good words for high temper. It is traditional to think that the man or woman with a high temper—a badly controlled temper—has something that is a real asset in disguise. We have come to think the high-tempered man has energy, pep, drive.

The fact is bad temper is a hold-over from the barbarous age when men lived by instinct. Self-control is the master quality of the human being—not temper.

MOTHERS AND COMMENCEMENTS

Commencement days are over. Youngsters have been in the foreground, parents in the background. This paragraph is for young folks. Remember—mother's heart and father's heart are made light or heavy by your way with them. You—through school—are the product of their sacrifice and devotion. If you are grateful, say so.

The story is told of a mother on her death-bed. Like other mothers she had been unselfish, self-effacing. She had been too busy, to bound down with care, to think much about her children's thoughtlessness.

Now the children had come home to see her die. One of them, looking back through the years and the tears said: "What a wonderful mother you have been to us!"

And mother, looking up from her bed, saying her last words, said:

"Oh, why didn't you tell me that before."

TACTS GETS YOU FAR

"Everything has two handles," said Epictetus, old Greek slave who became a school teacher in Rome. "Be sure you know which handle to take hold of."

To take on tact and diplomacy doesn't mean to pass up truth. To have tact doesn't mean to beat about the bush. Everything is in the approach. Tact gives you the right approach. Come at things right and you can tell the truth without brutality.

ROOSEVELT AND READING

The writer asked Kermit Roosevelt how his father managed to read so many books.

"He read all the time when he didn't just have to do something else," was the answer.

Roosevelt, going on a comparatively short sea journey, took aboard fifty books. People wondered why he was so interesting, why his mind was so active. It was because he kept his reservoir full of ideas—and he got ideas out of books. He made a business of reading hard. It's a business that pays dividends.

SONGS of a HOUSEWIFE

OFFS By Marjorie K. Rawlins

THE FACE ON THE PANSY

THERE was an old man, long ago,
Who hated flowers and gardens so,
That every one he came upon,
The cranky rascal trampled on.

Now pansies were his special bane.
Their blossoms in those days were plain.
Their simple blooms of black or yellow
Seemed to enrage the poor old fellow.

He tore up pansies by the dozens,
And violets, their second-cousins,
Until, if I am not mistaken,
He was by palsy overtaken.

The pansies saw their chance to shock
him,
In mischievous revenge to mock him;
And to this day, to his disgrace,
They wear his cross old bearded face!

KELLYGRAMS by FRED C KELLY

OUR CANDY AND SODA HABITS

A friend who has a string of candy and soda shops tells me of the importance to his business of certain phases of human nature. A candy or soda counter is likely to do more business if near a five-and-ten cent store than if in a location, otherwise equally good, next to a piano store. Shoppers interested in pianos are far less numerous than those who deal at the five-and-ten. The idea is to have a neighbor who will help draw a crowd.

Next to a moving picture theater in the suburbs is a good place to sell candy or soda—though the movies have hurt the sale of cheaper candies, inasmuch as youngsters who used to save their pennies for candy, now save them

MAKING MODERN MENUS

Mrs. Jones—"Do you care for Finnan Haddie?"
Mrs. Brown—"We are all very fond of it. That reminds me that I must have some soon."
Mrs. Jones—"Try cooking them after this recipe, then. They are delicious."

BAKED TOMATOES WITH FINNAN HADDIE

Peel the tomatoes, fit them into buttered individual baking dishes and remove a portion of the center from each. Dust the interior lightly with salt and paprika. Flake a cupful of finnan haddie, moisten with a highly seasoned cream sauce and flavor with a dash of curry powder and a few drops of Worcestershire sauce. Fill into the tomatoes, cover with crushed dried breadcrumbs, dot with bits of butter and bake in a hot oven until the tomatoes are tender.

Serve in the baking dishes.

Many Minds SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"While the transatlantic flight is causing great public interest, I think it would be well not to forget the things done during the war. In that time feats were performed and deeds accomplished, which were overshadowed by the immensity of the war itself, which were far greater than any peace accomplishment of aviation."—Colonel C. A. Lindbergh.

"Of the three historical scourges of the race—famine, pestilence and war—two have been conquered. The movement to outlaw war is growing rapidly, not because of sentimental reasons chiefly, but through sheer force of economical necessity and human security. It is a challenge to the graduates of the universities of the world. Certainly we in America will not say the thing is impossible. What is needed is conscientious and intelligent citizenship."—Professor William E. Lingelback, University of Pennsylvania.

for the pictures. What helps sales is that many happy young couples quietly hold hands and munch candy while witnessing events on the screen.

A candy and soda store in a small city where three thousand people pass its doors each day will do more business than if it were located where three thousand people pass in a large city. And, all other conditions being equal, it will do still better with exactly the same amount of traffic in the suburbs of a large city. For some reason a man strolling along a street in a small town or in the suburbs is much more disposed to pause and buy candy or soda water than he would be were he walking through the heart of a metropolis. Perhaps it is because, in the quieter locality, unless he eats candy there is not much else for him to do.

More candy and soda water are sold at three o'clock in the afternoon than at any other time of the day. Women shoppers are then out in great numbers. The next best hour is about eight o'clock in the evening—at which hour young men set out to call on their girls; but eight per cent more candy and soda are sold at three o'clock than at eight. Candy sold late at night is usually to husbands anxious to square themselves for not being home earlier.

Five women buy soda water to every four men, making a man only four-fifths as good a soda prospect as a woman. On candy, the two well known sexes average about fifty-fifty. Women buy candy oftener than men, but men buy more at a time.

People naturally like cooling drinks on hot days. Yet there is such a thing as having weather too hot. When the thermometer rises above a certain point, sales will be less than if the temperature were not quite as high. This seems surprising, and yet the explanation is simple. The weather is so hot that nobody wants to make the exertion necessary to walk to the soda fountain! However, on an atrociously hot day, though the total sales of soda may be lower than usual, the number of sales compared with the amount of traffic on the street is exceptionally high, because many of the people on the street are there for the sole purpose of walking to a soft drink dispensary. From seventy-two to ninety degrees Fahrenheit seems to be the best for soda sales.

Any day of comparative idleness, such as Sunday, causes us to think of candy. People eat it, not so much to appease their appetite, as just for something to do.

Keeping HEALTHY by Dr. A. F. Currier

THE TONIC EFFECT OF LINDBERGH'S FLIGHT

What is a tonic? A substance which strengthens the heart action, deepens the respiration, improves the general condition and incidentally stimulates the imagination.

Is there anything lacking in the fitness of this definition, as a description of the effect of Lindbergh's flight?

Is there anything which has ever happened in human history, humanly speaking, which is more comparable in the wide-spread effect it has had upon young and old throughout the civilized world?

They talk about his return to his mother and his country as a military conqueror would come. The reality is not a good one. No military conqueror ever returned from his conquest without leaving behind him a trail of desolation, blood and tears. The greater the conquest, the greater the agony that goes along with it.

This conqueror has inflicted no wounds, has caused no heart ache, and has brought healing and comfort to the hearts of those who were sorrowing for the comrades who were less fortunate than he in their great undertaking.

Think of the daring of this adventure! True, he had had experience in flying and in flying at night. True he knew the machine which he has regarded as a part of himself, but he was going on an adventure alone, he was going where there were no search-lights to guide him by night where there were fifteen hundred miles or more of ocean which would have no mercy for any slip on the part of him or his machine.

Storm, ice, fog, might down him. Every minute he must be on the watch. If anything went wrong, goodbye to Mr. Lindbergh. And this was all foreseen, foreknown. Could any but an undaunted, conquerable soul venture upon such risks? But he reached his goal, landed like the consummate master of air craft that he is, and

OSTEND, Belgium, June 28.

Harold S. Huxtable, president of the Lakewood Rotary Club and James G. Card, president of the Cleveland Rotary, who headed the largest delegation sent to the eighth annual convention at Ostend, declared they were very much impressed by the remarkable progress Belgium has made in reconstructing her devastated regions.

"We never believed she would get on her feet so quickly," they affirmed, "but we see it has been by the hardest kind of work and devotion to the soil."

"We confess, too, that after seeing so many poor women, many of them very old, laboring the fields and doing all kinds of hard work, our heart strings were pulled, and we almost felt we would begin to plead for debt cancellation."

"Thinking matters over more seriously, however, we agree that the Hon. Theodore E. Burton is right after all."

The Theatre

With a dozen companies working, preparing or cutting, the United Artists studio is now in the midst of the busiest period of its history. Never before, perhaps, has such a galaxy of starring, directorial and writing talent been concentrated on one lot.

Douglas Fairbanks is making "The Gaucho," a spectacular story of South America adventure, under the direction of F. Richard Jones. It is Doug's most ambitious effort.

Mary Pickford has started work on her long-awaited opus of the shop girl. It is titled "My Best Girl" and it affords "America's Sweetheart" a brand new characterization. Herbert Brenon is bringing the best-selling English novel, "Sorrell and Son," to the screen for United Artists, with H. B. Warner, in his first role since "The King of Kings." Alice Joyce, Anna Q. Nilsson, Carmel Myers, Norman Trevor, Louis Wolheim, Mickey McBan and other noted players. The company leaves for England in July to shoot about half of the picture.

Constance Talmadge, directed by Mal St. Clair is starring in "Dejeuner de Soleil," a gay story of modern Paris. It is Constance's last feature for First National release before she joins United Artists. Corinne Griffith's picture "The Garden of Eden," which has a modern continental locale, is well into production. In the supporting cast are Louise Dresser, Rose Dione, Edward Martindel, David Torrence, Andre Beranger and Andres de Sola.

Norma Talmadge has completed her first United Artists vehicle, "The Dove," which now is in the cutting room, and has gone to Europe for a vacation before

Buster Keaton, having completed his United Artists laugh feature, "College," will soon plunge into work on another comedy, Charles "Chuck" Reisner, director and Carl Harbaugh, scenarist, are preparing an original story for the frozen-faced star. The Keaton unit of the Joseph M. Schenck organization continues to maintain its own studio about a mile away from the United Artists lot.

Among the pictures in the cutting room at the United Artists studio are "Two Arabian Knights," directed by Lewis Milestone and starring William Boyd, with Louis Wolheim and Mary Astor in featured roles, and "Topsy and Eva," the feature which marks Rosetta and Vivian Dunaway's screen debut. "Topsy and Eva" will have its premiere at Grauman's Egyptian Theater, on June tenth, with the Dunaway sisters themselves in the prologue.

How to Achieve Beauty

DEODORANTS AND PERSPIRATION

In further regard to the matter of personal daintiness, today I am going to touch on excessive perspiration and the use of deodorants.

The problem of excessive perspiration is probably one of the most disconcerting of all matters relating to personal hygiene, as the slightest trace of bodily odor will completely mar all other claims to good grooming and personal daintiness. At the same time I want to warn you against the use of drastic deodorants which render the excretory glands permanently inactive. It is a very dangerous thing to do, as one-third of all the impurities of the system should be eliminated through the pores and a healthy normal person should "pour" forth something like one and one-half quarts of perspiration each day.

There are two kinds of perspiration, and they might be termed "perceptible" and "imperceptible." Imperceptible perspiration takes the form of vapor at it leaves the body, and is therefore not noticeable, whereas "perceptible" perspiration is slower to evaporate as it leaves the body, becomes visible, and oftentimes gives forth an undesirable odor. This is the sort of perspiration we have to counteract the effects of, and the best way to do so is by immaculate cleanliness (the daily bath) as well as by the moderate use of mild deodorants, which neutralize perspiration odors but which do not permanently stop its flow.

The use of a deodorant should be followed by a generous dusting of a talcum powder.

A simple deodorant powder which you can compound yourself is made as follows: One and a half drams of camphor, four ounces orris root, sixteen ounces finely pulverized starch.

The armpits are the part of the body where the odor of excessive or "perceptible" perspiration makes itself most apparent. It is therefore well to keep the hair under the arms closely shaved and to consistently use a mild deodorant.

The palms of the hands and the soles of the feet have a greater number of perspiratory glands than any other part of the body, and the perspiration should never be impeded at these sources. If you suffer from excessively perspiring feet that produce an unpleasant odor, I would suggest warm foot baths and the use of Castile soap once or even twice a day, if possible, and the after dusting of an antiseptic talcum powder. One that is efficacious and that you can mix easily at home is made as follows. Boracic acid, one ounce; precipitated chalk, two ounces; powdered talc, seven ounces.

For perspiring hands try the following: Dip your palms into very cold water, dry thoroughly, use a good astringent and rub with boracic acid powder.

Do not ever try to conceal an unpleasant odor of perspiration by the use of powder or perfumes. Immaculate cleanliness is the first essential to personal daintiness.

ROTARIANS DEFEAT CENTRAL AS KIMBER SUBDUES CLOUTERS

A four-cornered tie for second place in the Xenia Playground League was created when the Rotary Club defeated Central High School 15 to 12 in a close softball game at Cox Memorial Athletic field Monday night.

The tie is between the Rotary Club, Central High School, Boy Scouts and Senior Business Men, each of the teams in question having won and lost four games.

The Junior Business Men have won seven and lost one game while the Kiwanis Club has won one and dropped seven league contests to date.

Rotarians piled up a safe lead in the first three innings Monday but the high school athletes, fighting a game uphill battle, rallied to score seven runs in the sixth and threatened to wipe out the advantage.

Rotarians scored five in the first, two more in the second, six in the third and two in the sixth. Kimber was on the hill for the Rotarians and was in rare form.

The firemen play the butchers in a Class B game Tuesday night.

INTRODUCING THE NEW TRICOLATOR

A Scientifically Correct Means Of Preparing Coffee
GIVES FAULTLESS FLAVOR

HOW IT MAKES COFFEE
The spreader locks the ground coffee over a fibre silk filter, which is used only once. (A supply of filters accompanies every outfit.) Boiling water is poured over the coffee through the filter, causing the coffee extract thus made, to drip into the pot as finished and delicious coffee.

Why The Coffee Tastes Delicious
No insoluble fats; no boiling; no bitter taste; no loss of strength; no grounds in the cup; no stale smell in the coffee-pot—
Just pure, clear, rich-brown coffee, appetizing in aroma, delicious in flavor, endowed with the full strength of the potent bean—

Introductory Offer — Special
The Tricolator crown—which may be used on any percolator or coffee pot—and one pound of our regular 50c coffee for next ten days. Special at Tricolator Sets in Pyrex, Aluminum and Vitrified China. Come in and see them and learn this new coffee method.

TOLEDO ROTARIANS SING WAY TO FAME

OSTEND, Belgium, June 28.—Toledo, Ohio, got its name on the map of Europe recently, through the singing of Joe Murphy's celebrated "Ice House Quartette," at the convention of Rotary International in Belgium.

The English delegates thought their ice man's uniform a very clever "bit of fun." The Frenchmen whispered that they must be American cowboys from the Far West, and the customs officers weren't going to let them pass through because of the ice picks which looked very much like revolvers encased in their mail-studded leather jackets.

He himself, explained to everybody that they were just a bunch of business men singing for the fun of it and hoped that everybody would like it. He didn't explain however why twenty-two ice-men are called a quartette.

While in Belgium they always began by singing the Belgian national anthem, "Brabanconne," but finished off with "We're Strong for Toledo."

And they called him "Sailor Tag." Because of knots he'd always brag. "I can't tie this knot so it will stay," said the exasperated Tag. He had been working with his kite string for half an hour and each time just as he thought he had a good knot, it would start to break loose and he would almost lose his new kite.

"Why don't you tie a square knot," called over Marty from his place on the cliff, where his aeroplane kite was flying gayly in the wind.

"I only know how to tie a plain knot and it doesn't hold," answered the discouraged Tag. His kite was brand new and he was so anxious to give it a try and yet in spite of all his efforts, his knots wouldn't hold and he was afraid to take a chance of letting the wind have its way with the poorly tied rope.

Marty, seeing that Tag was getting quite worked up over his difficulties with the rope tied his own kite to a fence post and went to his companion's aid.

"My uncle's a sea captain and he's the one who taught me how to

"Then all you have to do is to twist the ends around each other and tighten the knot."

"It looks simple enough when you are doing it, but I don't think I could remember all of that," said the somewhat puzzled Tag.

"Get another piece of rope and follow me step by step," advised Marty. "That's the way my uncle taught me."

Tag found another piece of rope quickly enough and was soon following Marty's movements step by step with his own rope ends. The second time he tried, the rope seemed to fall into place with no effort at all.

"You're getting it," encouraged Marty. "It won't be long before your fingers will tie a square knot almost automatically. The hard thing is to tell someone else how you do it."

Tag was greatly pleased over this new discovery in rope tying. Of course he had often heard boys speaking and in many cases brag-

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

Philip Wynne Tracy IV has had a childish engagement with Natalie Jones. Becoming interested in Lyra Hilliard, an old friend of his mother, he soon finds himself falling in love with her. Natalie, overhearing him making love to Lyra, breaks her engagement. It all comes to nothing, however, for America enters the World war.

Phil enlists, and just before leaving for France he meets Natalie again and they plan to be married. The immediate departure of his troops, however, prevents this. The regiment is sent to the front soon after arriving in France, and while on a dangerous mission Phil is wounded and receives the cross de guerre for bravery.

After the armistice, Phil is awarded a scholarship in a French university, and while in Paris he comes face to face with his mother, who has come to France to hunt him. He is accompanied by Major Aukland, who is devoted to her.

Mrs. Tracy learns that Phil intends to marry Pat, a rich French divorcee. She refuses to give her consent to the marriage.

Phil compromises with his mother. If she will refuse Major Aukland's proposal of marriage, he will give up Pat for two years. She agrees, and they take passage for America.

Unknown to Phil, Mrs. Tracy invites Natalie to breakfast with them the morning after their return home. Phil is somewhat upset by the change in Natalie. She is apparently frivolous in manner and dress.

Here the story further unfolds—

CHAPTER LIII
WYNNE RESOLVES TO TRY AGAIN

PHILIP TRACY hesitated a moment, and then he repeated Natalie's question, "How do I like her? She is so surprising that I must decline to answer—yet."

"So you are living all alone in Aunt Julia's house?"

"Not entirely alone," she answered, after a moment.

"I have a companion about 40 years old, and some servants. Dad's just hopping mad about it, but for once he can do nothing. I'm of age and it's my money and Mother and Jerry would not let him forbid me his house."

"Now, Wynne, don't you look as if you, too, did not approve. Yes, you're going to be, but I hope you're pretending to be a Great Stone Face and that some day I'll get back under it and find the Wynne that Rod and I used to know."

For one moment Philip thought he caught a glimpse of earnestness and sincerity in the lapis lazuli eyes. He marched forward quickly, but Natalie eluded him. With a "Shall I sit here, Mrs. Tracy?" she passed to the other side of the table from where he was standing, and sat down.

ANNE TRACY had said nothing all through this conversation, entirely made up of small talk. She was trying to discover if Natalie was sincere or if she had really become this frothy, frivolous girl. She knew that some girls change in just this sort of way when they get from under the domineering restraint of their parents.

She could see that Phil was quite as much at sea as she was, and she wished as Philip asked rather wistfully, "Has everybody in America changed as much as you have, Natalie?"

"Of course they have, Wynne. The old girl herself has changed. America has stepped out since the war. Just at present she is doing a toe dance on the top of the world to jazz music. You'll have to join in the grand march. Mind your step or you'll get left on the side lines."

"I'm very tired of marching, Natalie, but it may be amusing when I get used to it."

"Oh, Wynne, I hope you'll get used to it soon. I don't want you to be like Jerry. He's been getting used to it and now he's a cold-blooded pudding, with an unsuspected soul of whipped prunes since he's been with father. I'm getting so I hate these mollycoddles who haven't guts enough to talk up for themselves."

(That's a word I learned from the boys who have come back from overseas. You ought to have heard it enough not to be shocked.)

PHILIP looked across the table and smiled. This child was somebody quite new, but she was interesting after all.

Natalie returned Phil's smile with enthusiasm, for he still had a way with women, although he thought he had lost it.

any man she happens to be near. She has dropped her youthful and flapperish airs and it's very becoming. Now you, Wynne, have grown so old and dignified that I'm really afraid of you."

"And you, Natalie, have grown so young and frivolous and bewitchingly lovely, that I'm afraid of you."

"I'm not all that, Wynne. It's just the contrast between the American girls and the French. Did you really like them?"

Philip grinned. "Well, I thought I did while I was over there."

"That's a nice compliment," Natalie exclaimed, almost the nicest I've received since you went away. It sounds more like you than anything I've heard you say since I came to breakfast."

"But you're not eating anything, my dear," put in Mrs. Tracy. "No one eats anything nowadays. We must keep our boyish figures, you know. And now I really must run. Awfully sorry, Mrs. Tracy, but Dad seemed to find a dozen things for me to do for him this morning. He knew I was coming here to give Wynne the once over and say 'Welcome home.'"

A GAIN Philip smiled. "Your father doesn't seem to have lost any of his old prejudices, my dear."

"Well, he can't say very much against a man who has stopped a bullet in such a way that only a croix de guerre is supposed to cover the war."

"Good-bye, dear Mrs. Tracy. You'll let me come again soon, won't you? And as for you, Wynne—"

She turned and held out both hands. She seemed about to speak. Was there a mist of pain in the dark blue eyes? He could not tell, and before he had decided, she was gone.

Mother and son looked at each other in silence for some seconds after the girl had left the room.

"It's rather an overpowering Natalie, isn't it, Mum?"

"Philip, I think she's acting."

"Don't be foolish. No one could act as well as she did this morning."

There was a grinding of gears in front of the house. Quickly Philip got up and went to the window.

There he saw Natalie, her head bent over the wheel, seemingly making futile efforts to drive the car.

He did not realize until he had gotten to her that she was crying.

"Natalie, Natalie, dear," he exclaimed in consternation.

"Go away, Wynne Tracy. What are you doing here? Don't you see I don't want you around?"

"But I thought you were having trouble with the car." Philip fairly stammered over the words.

"I wasn't having trouble with it or over anything. Go away and leave me. I don't need your help. I was just crying—because I'm so lonesome without Rod."

Philip Tracy raised Natalie's face. "This is not the girl who took breakfast with mother this morning. I didn't know that girl at all."

"Well, you've nothing on me, Wynne Tracy. I came to the conclusion that I had never known you."

SHE made a gesture as though she were going to start the car.

"Wait a minute, Natalie. Can't we begin all over again?"

"No, Wynne. We were always beginning over and never ending anywhere. You really don't want me to begin again. You're not really sorry because I'm crying. It just makes you uncomfortable to see me cry. I wish you'd go away. I've got to start this car. If you want to play around with me awhile, all right. I'll let Jerry invite you to dine with us at one of the restaurants soon."

"Why drag Jerry in, Natalie? Come and dine with me."

"No, Wynne. I'm not going to start anything. You say you do not know me. Well, at last I think I know myself. I like you—I'm very fond of you—or I will be when you've shaved off that mustache and gotten back into American ways, but I'm not going to flirt with you—never again."

"That sounds like the old direct Natalie. I'm going to tell you something right now. If you don't love me, you don't love any one—not even his highness, the 'bread pudding with the whipped prune soul,' and so there's a chance for me, and for the first time in my life I'm going to try to make a girl love me."

(TO BE CONTINUED)

Phil and Natalie see a great deal of each other, and Phil feels the old love returning. Has Natalie had a change of heart? Read what happens in the next chapter.

ALLEGED ATTACK ON AMERICAN WOMAN IN FRANCE IS PROBED

By FREDERIC WILLIAM WILE
Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright, 1927
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 28—State department officials are investigating a mysterious attack in France upon a woman official of the United States government—Miss Mary Stewart, director of the junior division of the federal employment service at Washington.

Miss Stewart, who went to Europe in the spring on an official mission was waylaid in an American war cemetery outside of Paris by a man who had been assigned to act as her guide. In an attempt to rob Miss Stewart of her purse and other valuables, the man knocked her down, broke one of her legs, dislocated some of her teeth, and otherwise subjected her to injury.

She screamed loud enough to attract the attention of others and her assailant made his escape in fear of arrest before he had succeeded in despoiling Miss Stewart of any of her property.

Details of the case have been in possession of the state department for several weeks, but pending the clearing up of all the circumstances it has apparently been decided to withhold the facts from public knowledge.

Suffers From Shock.
Miss Stewart, her friends in Washington understand, also suffered a severe nervous shock from her distressing experience, in addition to her physical harm. They are informed that she required treatment in one of the American hospitals at Paris for some time after the episode, but was later able to resume the work which took her to Europe. This concerned employment systems maintained by various governments, in which Miss Stewart was inquiring on behalf of the department of labor, with which the United States employment service is affiliated. Her comrades in the department understand that at least three countries had been studied by Miss Stewart before the affair in the Paris war cemetery. This is said to have occurred some time in May, Italy, Switzerland and France were the lands Miss Stewart had already visited.

The young woman employment service official makes her home with her mother in the Wardman Park Hotel in Washington. Beyond stating that her daughter has sent word that she will be home by July 1, Mrs. Stewart declines to discuss the Paris incident in any form. Miss Stewart is one of the several women in important executive positions at the department of labor and has made an enviable record in the employment service, which is charged with the duty of fostering, promoting and developing the welfare of the wage-earners of the United States. She is chief assistant to Francis I. Jones, the director-general of the employment service.

Putting plenty of the right kind of rubber in the right place is a most important element in the building of United States Tires. This Web Cord machine soaks all the Cotton Cord for Royal Cord Balloons with pure rubber latex. Latex is the right kind of rubber to impregnate the Cotton Cord.

Get more for your money

If you were building a tire for yourself, you would not skimp on the rubber. Neither do we. This Company owns enormous rubber plantations including the largest producing plantation in the world. On these plantations are 10,000,000 rubber trees—pedigreed stock.

We have invented Sprayed Rubber—the outstanding process for producing rubber. Sprayed Rubber is the strongest and most uniform rubber known. It is made without the use of smoke or acids.

We have invented Web Cord, the most modern way of combining rubber and cords.

The policy of "Plenty of Rubber" plus the ability to get the rubber and the skill to put the right kind of rubber in the right place, shows itself in the quality of Royal Cord Balloons on the wheels of your car.
